WE'RE LAUNCHING A BRAND CALLED NEW MARKET GOODS

NEWMARKETGOODS.COM

New Market Goods is a clothing line and home goods line designed in San Francisco, with the goal of better understanding and highlighting positive garment production practices in Bangladesh. We've partnered with Deshal, a community of local garment producers who have been striving to create better working conditions and community in their factory.

We are improving local livelihoods by returning a share of our profits directly back to the community that is the heart and hands of New Market Goods. Together we hope to celebrate Bangladeshi artisanship, improve transparency in clothing production, and make your new favorite goods.

WE BELIEVE MADE IN BANGLADESH CAN MEAN SO MUCH MORE

When was the last time you purchased a shirt and thought about the hands that made it and the journey it took to get to you?

Chances are high that something you own was made in Bangladesh. It is the world's second largest exporter of clothing, but clothing companies rarely communicate or celebrate this—often because the conditions for the workers leave little to be celebrated. But on our frequent trips to the country we've been endlessly inspired by the people, textiles, and vibrancy found in every corner.
